FREE HALF HOUR LEGAL ADVICE

What am I entitled to?

As long as you are a member of Prospect and your subscriptions are up to date, you are entitled to a basic consultation of up to a half hour and can receive advice on most areas of law including consumer enquiries and contracts, housing and property disputes & family law issues.

In cases where employment, personal injury or health and safety issues are involved, you will be referred to your Prospect full-time negotiator. There may also be other areas which our advocates may not cover, so it is important to check with us first.

As long as the legal issue is different, you can use the service more than once during your membership.

The service can be via phone i.e. your legal advice is via a telephone helpline in which the advocate will discuss your case details over the phone. This replicates the legal helpline available to Prospect members in the UK. Face to face advice is available if preferred.

Can anyone else get it?

This service is provided free to all Prospect members, your spouse, partner or any financially dependant member of your immediate family.

How do I get it?

You need to be up to date with your subscriptions and a member of Prospect. Simply call Gelling Johnson Farrant and indicate you are a Prospect member and wish to use the free ½ hour legal service.

When you call make sure you have your Prospect membership number ready as this will be requested. Gelling Johnson Farrant will check your membership is up to date with us separately.

Are there any hidden costs?

No. If the consultation continues beyond the free half hour and the advocate intends to charge you, they will advise you of this, and at this point you can decide whether you wish to continue.
